MARKET INSIGHTS

- ✓ WalletHub named Colorado the 5th best state for retirees, and 15th best for raising a family. The research firm also named Denver the 10th most recovered city since the end of the Great Recession among 505 other U.S. cities.
- ✓ Smart Asset named Louisville, Centennial, Arvada and Westminster as the top Colorado cities in their Healthiest Housing Market Study. The rankings are based on how long people stay in their homes, home values, ease of sale and costs associated with ownership.
- ✓ According to the U.S. Census Bureau, home ownership decreased in Colorado in 2016 but increased nationally.
- ✓ New home starts continue to increase, but remain low for what most experts estimate to be a healthy new home market.
- ✓ Although there are few move-in-ready options, buyers are turning to new construction, which allows them to avoid bidding wars.
- ✓ Forecasts suggest that the Feds will raise rates between two and three more times this year. As a reminder, 10 years ago the 30-year mortgage rate was 6.125 percent, and people were still buying homes. Still, getting an early start home shopping early this year, before we see more movement upward, is wise.
- ✓ The refinance share of mortgage activity decreased to 44 percent of total applications, its lowest level since October 2008 according to the Mortgage Bankers Association.
- ✓ Lenders are offering a variety of aggressive programs: for low-credit (starting at 500 FICO score, or one-day out of foreclosure or bankruptcy); for business owners (bank statements only); for investors (cash flow lending); and for second-time homebuyers (25 percent down, high credit score, no doc). Rates vary from five to nine percent.
- ✓ More agents are collaborating or forming teams so they can provide the best service to their clients in this competitive market.
- ✓ Agents are using social media marketing companies to help build their brand, oversee their social media accounts and to keep in front of their clients every day.
- ✓ More agents in MLS/phone messages are establishing limitations and boundaries on their work hours. Examples include no Sunday deadlines and returning calls received after 6:00 PM the following day.
- ✓ Quick Stats:
 - Average Active Listings for March is 15,040 (1985-2016).
 - Record-high March was 2006 with 27,309 listings and the record-low was 2015 with 4,112 listings.
 - The historical average increase in active listing from February to March is 4.58 percent. 2017 represents a new record increase of 26.9 percent.

EXPERT OPINION

Chairman of the DMAR
 Market Trends Committee

The spring selling season is off and running, and our housing market experienced some of its own March Madness. Buyers and sellers will be happy with the healthy increase in activity. Coming off February's lows, March saw significant increases in actives and new listings, as well as homes sold and under contract. Looking at sold homes by month, March is historically the start of our housing cycle that then peaks in June. This may be the catalyst to a record-setting year as the average sold price and median sold price year to date are setting up to break new records. The increase in new listings will give buyers some extra breathing room in finding that dream home. Moreover, concerns over appraisal delays are starting to recede and the refinance appraisals are down, giving our appraisers more time to focus on new purchases.

Looking deeper into the numbers: Active listings in the residential market (single-family and condos) increased 26.90 percent from last month and 9.79 percent year over year at 4,921 total units in March. The number of sold listings increased by 36.01 percent compared to the previous month. Increases are normal for this time of the year, but many of the increases were greater than our historical averages. February represented an all-time low for active listings with 3,878. March saw a significant increase in inventory of 29.27 percent within the single-family/detached segment. As we look at the single-family home market, the average sold price increased 4.90 percent to $468,889, while the median price rose 2.78 percent to $406,000. Year over year, we've seen 8.44 percent and 7.92 percent increases in average and median sales prices, respectively. The condo market showed a 27.25 percent increase in sales from the previous month, while the average and median sales prices rose to $317,402 and $260,000, respectively.

As in February, March experienced a surge of new listings for the residential market (single-family and condos) with an increase month over month of 49.05 percent and an increase of 19.35 percent from March of last year. We also saw a healthy increase in properties placed under contract, up 19.40 percent from last month and 10.04 percent from March of last year.

What does median look like? Of the homes that sold in March 2017, the median detached single-family home was 1,758 square feet, four bedrooms, three bathrooms, spent seven days on the market and was built in 1985. The median attached single-family home/condo was 1,168 square feet, two bedrooms, two bathrooms, spent five days on the market and was built in 1986.

Final Tidbits: Newly released numbers by the Colorado Association of REALTORS®, show statewide housing inventories fell in February by 36.4 percent compared to February of 2016. This demonstrates how the shortage of housing is not a local problem, as similar numbers are seen nationally. For example, the Greater Boston market saw 32.3 percent fewer active listings this year compared to last. Not all markets are experiencing low inventories. Florida, for example, is only down 0.7 percent year over year according to the Florida Association of REALTORS®. Weigh-in via social media using #dmarstats.

EXPERT OPINIONS

“Luxury Market: Luxury buyers came out of winter hibernation in March and were in a buying mood. Sales of both single-family homes and condos priced over $1 million escalated 95.24 percent from February. Luxury condo sales skyrocketed 200 percent from February to March. Good news for luxury sellers: days on market fell for both condos and single-family homes to 115 days, and price per square foot went up month over month. The year-to-date sold volume of luxury homes rose to above $400 million compared to over $186 million year to date in 2014. Despite these major increases in sales, the luxury single-family segment continues to hold its position as the only segment of the market where buyers still have the power. With 7.41 months of inventory, there is more for buyers to choose from above a million than any other price range. But the choices are pretty slim in some of Denver’s most popular luxury neighborhoods and more abundant the further out you go into the suburbs. Condos in the Luxury Market are sitting at 4.72 months of inventory, meaning sellers have the upper hand. Between five and six months is considered an equal market between buyers and sellers. It appears luxury buyers can expect to start seeing more multiple offer situations like the rest of the market has been experiencing over the past two years. - Jill Schafer, DMAR Market Trends Committee member and Denver real estate agent

Signature Market: Hello, spring! More hours of sunlight brought more homebuyers into the Signature Residential Market in March, which saw a 93.68 percent increase in homes sold compared to the prior month, and almost a 20 percent increase from one year ago. Did the time change mess up your morning routine? Well, it didn’t seem to bother homebuyers in the single-family

Signature Market. There was an 86.59 percent increase in sales in this segment of the market and over 20 percent from one year ago. Condo buyers in the Signature Market were taking advantage of the longer days and enjoying the earlier sunrises in March, with an increase in sales at over 138 percent! Is this segment of the market going to become more competitive like the Premier Market? We saw a decrease in months of inventory go from 5.35 in February to 3.39 in March for the residential market (single-family and condos), and from 7.58 in February to 3.29 in March for the condo market. - Brigette Modglin, DMAR Market Trends Committee member and Denver real estate agent

Premier Market: For sports fans, madness in March is something everyone looks forward to with great anticipation. People follow their brackets and with every team that is eliminated, they pick a new favorite to cheer for (or experience depression over the lost opportunity for their team to move on). The Premier Market had buyers feeling that same anticipation or depression depending on if they were one of the 745 buyers who came away winning in a bid for the home of their choice, or one who lost in multiple offers and had to hope for another option. Months of inventory in single-family residences for this price range were near the floor with only 1.7 months of inventory. That means that competition continues to be fierce as homes are only on the market for an average of 67 days; down from 83 days last year at the same time. Sellers? They are reveling in the madness. Average prices are up slightly from last month, with just shy of 30 percent more buyers in this price range than a year ago. That is the greatest increase in buyers of all the price brackets, so sellers in this range who are looking to move up in price are poised for a slam dunk. - Elaine Stucky, DMAR Market Trends Committee member and Denver real estate agent

GLOSSARY

Active Listings: The number of properties available for sale at the end of the reported period. The availability of homes for sale has a big effect on supply-demand dynamics and home prices.

New Listings: The number of properties which became available during the reported period.

Under Contract: The number of listings that were changed status from Active to Under Contract at the end of the reported period. Under Contract listings are counted at the end of the reported period. Each listing can only be counted one time. If a listing goes into Under Contract, out of Under Contract, then back into Under Contract all in one reported period, the listing would only be counted once. This is the most real-time measure possible for home buyer activity, as it measures signed contracts on sales rather than the actual closed sale. As such, it is called a “leading indicator” of buyer demand.

Days on Market (DOM): A measure of how long it takes a given property to sell, on average.

Sold Listings: A measure of home sales that sold and closed during the reported period.

Average Sales Price: A sum of all home sales prices divided by the total number of sales. Not considered the most accurate gauge since data from the high-end can easily skew the results.

Median Sales Price: A measure of home values in a market area where 50% of activity was higher and 50 percent was lower than this price point. This method is preferred because it's more insulated from outlying activity occurring at either tail end of the market.

Months Supply of Inventory (MOI): A measure of how balanced the market is between buyers and sellers. It is expressed as the number of months it would hypothetically take to sell through all the available homes for sale currently, given current levels of home sales. A balanced market ranges from 4 to 6 months of supply. A buyer's market has a higher number, reflecting fewer buyers relative to homes for sale. A seller's market has a lower number, reflecting more buyers relative to homes for sale.

Residential (RES): Represents the overall housing market which includes activity of Single Family Homes as well as Condos.

Single Family (Detached Homes): Activity of Detached Single Family Homes.

Condo (Attached Homes): Activity of Attached Condos & Townhomes.

Premier Market: Properties priced between $500,000 and $749,999.

Signature Market: Properties priced between $750,000 and $999,999.

Luxury Market: Properties priced at $1,000,000+ ($1M+).
