MARKET INSIGHTS

- ✓ Colorado homeowners can expect higher taxes driven by rising home values, and little relief from a constitutional provision designed to help; however, rising home and industrial property values will mean more money for school districts, local governments and special districts that rely on property tax dollars to fund public services.
 - ✓ Estimates for property tax rates could drop as low as 6.11 percent from 7.2 percent. The final study recommended that lawmakers set the rate closer to the current one at 7.15 percent.
 - ✓ More than 1.1 million notices of property valuation were sent out across metro Denver. A majority of Denver County homeowners will see a lower increase, compared to the 26 percent increase in 2017
 - ✓ Adams and Arapahoe counties experienced the largest residential value increase at 24 and 22 percent, respectively. In Douglas and Jefferson counties, residential values are slated to go up 14.5 percent. Broomfield saw the biggest jump (20.4 percent) in Jefferson County, followed by Westminster (17.2 percent) and Arvada (14.9 percent). Residential values are up 13 percent in Boulder County. Property owners have until June 1 to protest the valuation.
 - ✓ Colorado had five of the top 15 best places to own a vacation home according to a Bloomberg study including Edwards/Vail (#2), Breckenridge (#3), Steamboat Springs (#5), Glenwood Springs (#10) and Durango (#13).
 - ✓ Denver remains a top destination for Millennials to put roots down and live, according to a study by the National Association of REALTORS®.
 - ✓ The percentage of transactions involving seller concessions in the Denver metro area jumped to 58 percent as of the end of the first quarter of 2019.
 - ✓ Aurora was ranked number eight on Realtor.com's list of fastest-growing suburbs, showing three-year price appreciation of 19.4 percent.
 - ✓ Denver City Council passed its 20-year 'Blueprint' for growth after three years. The plan envisions a city of "complete neighborhoods" with goods and services easily reachable by foot, bike and transit to abate solo driving — and the cost and pollution that come with it. Blueprint is not regulatory — it will inform future policies and plans like a thesaurus informs language.
 - ✓ Pest control company, Orkin, ranked Denver the 10th most rat-infested city in the country - that's up from 11th place last year. Chicago was named the number one rattiest city.
- The newly named McGregor Square, unveiled last month, will be a 655,000 square foot mixed-use development near Coors Field at 1901 Wazee and is expected to be completed in the first quarter of 2021.
- ✓ The Greyhound Bus Station is up for sale. This is a once in a lifetime opportunity in downtown Denver to purchase an entire city block for redevelopment purchases, which could bring more housing. Final purchase offers are due by June 21.
 - ✓ Denver was listed as the 11th most-rent burdened city according to Freddie Mac. Renters in Miami carry the biggest burden.

- ✓ In the apartment rental market in the first quarter of 2019, the Denver metro area experienced a decline in vacancy from 5.8 percent to 5.4 percent, while the average rent increased from $1,455 to $1,480, according to the latest report from the Apartment Association of Metro Denver.
- ✓ While inventory is rising, multiple offers are still prevalent if a property is priced correctly. Properties may not receive five offers, but will likely receive two to three and that still puts sellers in the driver's seat to pick the offer that works best for their needs.
- ✓ Many buyers are searching for homes with the mind-set that they're over-priced even if only on the market for a short period of time.
- ✓ Greedy sellers are finding egg on their face with overpriced listings sitting on the market too long. Price reductions are more common even in the hot price ranges.
- ✓ Well-written offers are key when multiple offers are present. Brokers prefer to work with other brokers who are professional and are adept at keeping transactions together.
- ✓ Great lender partners are more important now than ever before. Some can close buyer's loans in as little as two weeks allowing financed buyers the ability to compete with cash. Do your homework and get your buyers pre-qualified so you are armed and ready to find their dream home.
- ✓ The 30-year fixed mortgage rate has risen 10 basis points in three weeks, and is now at its highest level in over a month. Borrowers remain extremely sensitive to rate changes, which is why there has been a 28 percent drop in refinance applications over this three-week period. Purchase activity also declined, but remains almost three percent higher than a year ago," said Mike Fratantoni, Mortgage Bankers Association Senior Vice President and Chief Economist.
- ✓ The Fed is in a sweet spot right now with moderate growth and low inflation, despite President Trump's pressure to lower rates and provide quantitative easing. The Federal Reserve is implementing a patient strategy of keeping rates steady.
- ✓ Mortgage rates are 0.25 to 0.38 percent lower than a year ago. Mortgage applications have increased three percent compared to last year, and a slowing appreciation have all contributed to fueling a strong purchase market today.
- ✓ The first quart GDP represented the best performance in four years at 3.2 percent. 2019 annualized GDP is still expected to land at 2.2 percent, so this growth is expected to be tempered as the year progresses.
- ✓ Quick Stats:
 - Average active listings for April is 15,399 (1985-2018). April 2019 had 7,012 active listings.
 - Record-high April was 2006 with 29,045 listings and 2015 represented the record-low with 5,025 listings.
 - The 20-year average change in active listings from March to April is an increase of 5.91 percent. 2019 represents a healthy increase of 11.44 percent.

EXPERT OPINION

JILL SCHAFER

Chair of the DMAR Market Trends Committee and Denver real estate agent

Spring is a great time to take in the smell of the blooming bushes and put things into perspective. This month is all about perspective. It took twice as long to sell a house so far this year compared to this point in 2018. That sounds alarming, doesn't it? The 100 percent increase is accurate, but when you realize that means the median went from six days on the market in 2018 to 12 in 2019, it doesn't look so bad. Less than two weeks on the market is still fast. That's what seems to be going on right now: some stats look like the sky is falling, but when put into perspective you can see why prices continue to go up in the Denver Metro area.

The average detached single-family home price hit a high of $553,371 at the end of April and reached a year-to-date high of $527,244. The average condo price was up 2.62 percent from March, ending the month at $368,565. That's also up 2.17 percent year to date.

Another example of the need for perspective: we ended the month with 7,012 active listings. In the past four years, active listings at the end of April were in the low 5,000's. We are up 35.89 percent year to date compared to last year. That is significant; yet we are in a seller's market in every single price range. Overall there is only 1.50 months of single-family inventory and 1.49 months of attached home inventory. That is much lower than the five to six months of inventory needed to equalize the market between buyers and sellers. We saw 7,518 new listings hit the market in April, up 21.28 percent from March, and buyers were gobbling up the new choices with 18.76 percent more homes under contract month over month.

That leads me to one other trend: price reductions. While demand is high, inventory is low and if sellers aren't getting an offer in the first 10 days, they need to consider a price adjustment. At this point between 2015 and 2018, homes were selling for more than 100 percent of list price. Year to date, the close to list price ratio is 99.24 percent. While there is some negotiating going on, the average seller is getting within one percent of the asking price. More choices, more contracts, a tiny bit of negotiating room and prices still going up. No matter what your perspective is, that sounds like a good market to me.

EXPERT OPINIONS

“Luxury Market (properties sold for $1 million or more): This is no April Fool’s joke - the Luxury Market loved April. The million dollar plus market saw pricing, number of homes sold and overall sales volume all increase compared to the previous month and year. There were 234 sold properties over $1 million, which is a month-over-month increase of 32.2 percent and a year-over-year increase of four percent. The highest sold single-family detached property went for $8,500,000 - over a million dollars for each bathroom in the house. The highest sold condo sold for $5,434,891, which was a three bedroom, four bathroom unit. These high-selling properties, along with the 232 other properties sold, accumulated over $373,874,436 in total sales for the month of April.

While many feel that the million dollar plus market is becoming saturated and moving towards a buyer’s market, based off of the stats, I would say that it is moving very slowly. For single-family detached properties, the months of inventory is 4.41, and for condos it is 3.24. Many REALTORS® would still consider this a seller’s market. Both the average and median days on market decreased from the previous month and year. The median days on market were 14 days in April, down from 21 in March and 19 in April of 2018.

As the Greater Denver Metro area has grown, so has its homebuyer pool. The quantity of sold properties year to date in 2019 was similar to the previous year, 638 and 647, respectively. This is a drastic increase from 2015 to 2017 where the range was from 230 sold properties to 461, respectively. This can be attributed to the strong economy and stability within our community. With more high-end development coming down the pipeline such as the Coloradan and Laurel, I would not be surprised to see continued growth in this market. — Andrew Abrams, DMAR Market Trends Committee member and Denver real estate agent

Signature Market (properties sold between $750,000 and $999,999): Is it spring yet? Asking for a friend... This has been an unpredictable spring and selling market. We are slowly seeing momentum build; however, compared to last year at this time, it feels a bit stagnant. Looking deeper into the data gives us some perspective. Month over month, both the number of sales and average sales price in the Signature Market for single-family homes and condos has increased. Plus, the average number of days on market has decreased from 50 days in March to 38 days in April, which is a good sign of forward progress.

Year-over-year comparisons show a more significant change, which has impacted the detached single-family market differently than the condo market. In April of 2018, 236 detached single-family homes were sold compared to 212 this April — a decrease of 10.71 percent. For condos, however, we saw an increase from 42 sales in April of 2018 to 47 sales in 2019 — an increase of 11.90 percent. Condos in the Signature Market also outperformed the market as a whole, which saw a decrease of 3.66 percent in the number of condo sales from April 2018.

Although the Signature Market experienced a very small decrease in the average sales price for both condos and detached single-family homes year over year, down 1.21 percent, the average price per square foot increased 6.68 percent.

While we have seen a slowdown from the activity of 2018, the Signature Market still has a close-to-list-price of over 99.48 percent. And, although the number of properties sold year to date is down 4.57 percent from 2018 with 794 total year-to-date sales, the number of sales in this segment has steadily increased over the last five years. Sellers still have a slight advantage with around three months of inventory, therefore making sure the home is priced correctly will make all the difference for sellers. — Amanda Snitker, DMAR Market Trends Committee member and Denver real estate agent

EXPERT OPINIONS

“Premier Market (properties sold between $500,000 and $749,999): While both the Nuggets and Avalanche are flourishing in the postseason, the Premier Market is still hoping to finish strong in this unpredictable spring market. The number of single-family sold homes is down 10.47 percent from April 2018 from 1,003 to 898, while the condo market is holding steady at 158 sold properties compared to 157 year over year.

If you are looking at the average price for a single-family home, it is up 0.80 percent from the previous month and 0.21 percent year over year to $596,006. You might get slightly more for your dollar this April compared to last, but your average days on market are longer at 32 versus 28 days in 2018. Prepare your clients that even though we are loving our competitive spring season, they may need to be more patient.

The average price for a condo in the Premier Market is $597,319, which is up 1.40 percent from the previous month; however, the condo market saw a decrease of 0.54 percent from the previous years' $600,566. The price per square foot has remained steady at $335, which is within 0.30 percent from the previous month and year over year. This would appear that you're still getting the same price per square foot, regardless if you sold your home in April of 2018 or 2019.

The Premier Market seems to be somewhat unpredictable, just like the Avalanche, who started off the season strong, slipped mid-way through and then managed to squeak into the playoffs and end up beating the number one seed in the first round! — Jessica Reinhardt, DMAR Market Trends Committee member and Denver real estate agent

Classic Market (properties sold between $300,000 and $499,999): The Classic Market segment remains extremely relevant, representing almost 50 percent of the sold inventory and 34 percent of the active inventory. The median sold price for the entire market was $420,000, which notably falls within the Classic segment. This number showed a modest gain from last month's $415,000, but stayed flat compared to 2018.

The Classic segment has started the year off stronger than last with the number of homes sold year to date up 0.23 percent, and sales volume up 0.40 percent. Both are about the same as last year, which was an all-time record high. April 2019 did not fare so well compared to April of 2018 though, dropping 3.89 percent in number of homes sold and 3.87 in sales volume.

On a continued theme, lack of inventory continues to be an issue. Months of inventory in the Classic segment is only 0.87 for single-family homes and 1.61 for condos. While a balanced market would have five to six months of inventory, the Classic segment remains a seller's market.

Demand remains strong as overall housing inventory in all price segments is up 11.44 percent since March and up 35.89 percent year over year; yet we still have only 7,012 active homes. Homes continue to go under contract quickly, with a year-to-date close price to list price ratio of 99.24 percent in the overall market, and 99.57 percent in the Classic segment.

As is typical this time of year, median current days on market in the Classic segment fell from nine days last month to seven, but is still 40 percent higher than last year's five days.

For buyers, more inventory is coming, but competition will be strong. For sellers, if your home sits longer than a month, it's time to revisit your marketing strategy. — Lawson Armstrong, DMAR Market Trends Committee member and Denver real estate agent

GLOSSARY

Active Listings: The number of properties available for sale at the end of the reported period. The availability of homes for sale has a big effect on supply-demand dynamics and home prices.

New Listings: The number of properties which became available during the reported period.

Under Contract: The number of listings that were changed status from Active to Under Contract at the end of the reported period. Under Contract listings are counted at the end of the reported period. Each listing can only be counted one time. If a listing goes into Under Contract, out of Under Contract, then back into Under Contract all in one reported period, the listing would only be counted once. This is the most real-time measure possible for home buyer activity, as it measures signed contracts on sales rather than the actual closed sale. As such, it is called a “leading indicator” of buyer demand.

Days on Market (DOM): A measure of how long it takes a given property to sell.

Sold Listings: A measure of home sales that sold and closed during the reported period.

Average Sales Price: A sum of all home sales prices divided by the total number of sales. Not considered the most accurate gauge since data from the high-end can easily skew the results.

Median Sales Price: A measure of home values in a market area where 50% of activity was higher and 50 percent was lower than this price point. This method is preferred because it's more insulated from outlying activity occurring at either tail end of the market.

Months Supply of Inventory (MOI): A measure of how balanced the market is between buyers and sellers. It is expressed as the number of months it would hypothetically take to sell through all the available homes for sale currently, given current levels of home sales. A balanced market ranges from 4 to 6 months of supply. A buyer's market has a higher number, reflecting fewer buyers relative to homes for sale. A seller's market has a lower number, reflecting more buyers relative to homes for sale.

Residential (RES): Represents the overall housing market which includes activity of Single Family Homes as well as Condos.

Single Family (Detached Homes): Activity of Detached Single Family Homes.

Condo (Attached Homes): Activity of Attached Condos & Townhomes.

Premier Market: Properties priced between $500,000 and $749,999.

Signature Market: Properties priced between $750,000 and $999,999.

Luxury Market: Properties priced at $1,000,000+ ($1M+).
